- Community Health Centre Ljubljana has a helpline: +386 51 684 253 and an email address: psiholoska.podpora.covid19@zd-lj.si where mental health professionals are available for conversation to help with the current coronavirus situation. You can reach them from 8 am to 8 pm, Monday to Friday. Most of their staff are comfortable with conversations in English.

- National Institute of Public Health (Slovenian: NIJZ) has a page dedicated to mental health in the time of the pandemic. This page is unfortunately not available in English – you can use Google Translate to access this page and other Slovenian sources that haven’t been translated. You can enter the URL to translate the entire page.

It’s important to get your information from reliable sources.
Sites that offer accurate information in English:

- A special government site about coronavirus. You can find up-to-date information about the number of cases in Slovenia. Government measures are currently changing on a daily basis – this site explains what they are in English.

- University Medical Centre Ljubljana
The site includes relevant information about hospital visits in the current situation.

Other sources (not based in Slovenia) that offer general advice for coping with coronavirus-related stress:

- World Health Organization (WHO) summarizes some basic tips in this leaflet.

- HelpGuide has a page dedicated to coronavirus anxiety. The site also offers general information about other mental health topics.

- European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control (CDC) covers the situation in Europe. The site also includes a useful Q&A section.

- Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (US-based) offer specific advice for looking after your mental health at this time.

- NHS (UK-based) has a page dedicated to self-isolation. They offer practical advice for looking after your physical and mental health.

- The Crisis Kit is a booklet that introduces different ways to cope with stressful and uncertain situations. It may be helpful if you are experiencing panic and anxiety attacks.
